Should I Report It?

> Imagine these scenarios. Would you use online tools to report these situations?

- A student posts a group photo in a public account, and you hate the way you look in it. Would you report that photo or not? How can you respond?

- Someone creates an account of a student you know using their name and photo. They made the photo into a joke by turning it into a meme, drawing a moustache and other weird facial features on it. Would you report the account or not?

- One night, you notice that a student has made a comment online saying they're going to fight with another student in the lunchroom the next day. Do you report that comment online or not? Do you report it to a teacher or principal the next morning or not?

- You're watching a cartoon video and all of a sudden there's some weird content in it that's definitely not appropriate for kids and makes you feel uncomfortable. Do you report it or not?

- You're playing an online game with friends and someone none of the players know starts chatting with you. They're not being mean or anything, but you don't know them. Do you ignore them or report them?

Adapted from Google's Be Internet Awesome Curriculum under CC BY 4.0

NC Workshops for Digital Readiness